A Framework to Measure Intranet Usage in Kenyan Public Universities These days intranets are becoming more and more popular throughout the business world and other types of organizations including learning institutions. This study develops and validates a credible body of evidence supporting the value of corporate intranets in relation to learning institutions' productivity. There are currently no accepted frameworks or methodologies to compare and evaluate Intranet usage in Kenyan public universities. Part of the difficulty for adopting a common comparison framework for intranets in institutions of higher learning (IHL) is that they are in constant reform and, more importantly, they have strong financial, social and cultura...
